A decision is made to give room to something in my life that should not be there

A spiritual discipline intended to bring transformation and help keep a close connection with God is neglected

The background of the slide is a grayscale photograph of a construction site. Several large tower cranes are visible, their lattice structures extending upwards. The sky is filled with numerous small, dark silhouettes of birds in flight, scattered across the upper half of the image. The overall tone is somber and contemplative.

“The general human failing is to want what is right and important, but at the same time not to commit to the kind of life that will produce the action we know to be right and the condition we want to enjoy ...

This is the feature of human character that explains why the road to hell is paved with good intentions. We intend what is right, but we avoid the life that would make it reality.”

— Dallas Willard

The background of the slide features a grayscale image of several large construction cranes at a building site. Overlaid on this image is a large number of small, dark red birds in flight, scattered across the entire frame. The text is centered in the upper half of the image.

“We can become like Christ by doing one thing—by following him in the overall style of life he chose for himself.”
